

It is imperative that the airwaves -- for both radio and television -- be made available to all manner of broadcasts, including those produced by private citizens, and those with political intent, even that critical of the government.

Additionally, I feel that we've given FAR too much access to and control of the airwaves to large corporations. Only a free and independent media can assure that our public officials hew to the wishes of their constituents. As is said, "Sunlight is the best disinfectant," and as such, only a media not closely allied to the government is able to present an objective view of governmental goings-on.

Thank you for your consideration.
